National Parks at Benaroya Hall
Wednesday, October 24, 2018
Save the date for this extra special event as Washington’s National Park Fund celebrates its 25th birthday with a special concert by Northwest Symphony, featuring visual presentations of our national parks.

1968: The year often referred to as our nation’s most turbulent of the 20th century. Amidst the turbulence across the country, a new day was dawning for Washington State. Senate Bill 1321 – a bill that would establish 570,000 acres as North Cascades National Park – was introduced by Senators Henry M. Jackson and Warren G. Magnuson. Interested parties including Harvey Manning, Patrick Goldsworthy, John and Polly Dyer, members of the “NC3” and David Brower and the Sierra Club were all passionately speaking up. They were collectively resolute with determination. WNPF founder Dan Evans, then Washington State Governor, was highly engaged as well. Their determination paid off.

THE NORTH CASCADES ACT WAS SIGNED ON OCTOBER 2, 1968.

The cold and miserable days are those you never forget...

They’re more than you bargained for but the reward is bigger than you expected.”
So says Annie Kilby, the bubbly National Park Service Education Ranger who tickled your heart in the WNPF Spring Dinner and Auction video. Her clowning, infectious joy and reassuring attitude infuses her teaching role. It ignites students’ curiosity and enthusiasm as Annie immerses them in an extraordinary day at Mount Rainier. It’s a day that requires without force feeding, students absorb Annie’s passion for nature as if drinking a delicious malted. No matter the weather.

Volunteering, visiting national parks, skiing, hiking, gardening – there’s not much Russ Fox doesn’t do. As one of 3 boys from Cleveland, Russ boarded a train after high school, saw our mountains, and never went back. He discovered the Fund through his wife, Carolyn Dobbs, who served on the Board.

In 2014 Carolyn passed away. Her obituary reads: Our national parks and wilderness areas, and the wildlife they protect, were Carolyn’s church. Mount Rainier was her cathedral. For decades, Carolyn hiked, climbed, skied and volunteered in Washington’s national parks with her “all-in” tenacity.

The Carolyn Dobbs Science Research Award at WNPF recognizes park science employees, and Russ is endowing a scholarship at Evergreen for science and research in the parks. A board member with Vital Ground, Equity Trust, and South of the Sound Community Farm Land Trust, he’s also a member of the Tuesday Men’s Hiking Club, helps with grandkids, and volunteers for CIMAS.

He looks forward to the Fund’s continued growth. He expects the parks to remain as popular as they are because of their heritage and pride in them as a nation. “I think one of the challenges over the next decade will be to find ways to not love our parks to death.”

First Federal Community Foundation, Port Angeles, was created by First Federal Savings & Loan Association in 2015 to help improve the quality of life within the communities the bank serves. WNPF has received $5,000 from the Foundation for the Elwha River Restoration Middle School Science program. Thanks to First Federal, 275 eighth grade students will travel into Olympic National Park to collect data for their 11-year data set on the Elwha River restoration. Stevens Middle School has won state honors in science education. Park staff, educators and parents believe this program is a big part of that success.
